Jason,

Not only typical, but sadly so very common. Your words will be a sad, but telling addition to my website. As to your "hunch," I have great peace from knowing that I have authority for all that I do and say both individually and as part of a collective group. I cringe for your soul; sorry I cannot relax about that.

Scott,

First, there was nothing smart-aleck about my comment. The FACT is if you are going to publish something on an individual, especially a brother in Christ, and part of your accusations deal with him of not responding to your emails the least you should do is verify you have the correct contact information. Which in this case you did not and if you had put just a little, very little research into it you would have found that Roger had not been at that location, using that email in over a year. Keep in mind God's word is clear about slander and malice (Prov. 6:9, Eph. 4:31, and James 4:11).

Second, RELAX...I was out of town and had very little access to my email, which by the way is filter and your case was caught and not delivered to me until Monday. And to the voicemail you left me...I don't where you left it there was nothing on my voicemail from you at my office.

Third, after speaking with dad on the matter he does not wish to be contacted by you. Nor do I wish to discuss this or any other issue for that matter. We are comfortable and confident in our view of the scripture and God's will for His kingdom and our lives.

I wish and pray for your peace. I have a hunch you are restless and very little peace exist within.

Numbers 6:24-26 "The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make his face shine upon you and be gracious to you; the Lord turn his face toward you and give you peace."

Jason,

Today is the 12th day of January, 2010. You initially contacted me on Dec. 27th 2009... 16 days ago. I have responded to you time and again (both by email and by phone message), but have heard not a word from you. Certainly, you are not going to shoot one shot from the trees and then run away - at least I would hope not (1 Cor. 16:13). I find your silence interesting.

Here is a simple question: are you planning on ever contacting me with the information I requested; i.e. your dad's correct email address.

Here is a second really simple question: if you will not provide the information, why did you bother contacting me at all to begin with, save to make a smart-aleck remark?

Now here is a simple matter of fact: Jason, I am willing to help your dad (or any of you) escape the certain wrath that awaits the erring by helping him (or any of you) understand Bible authority. I hope any of you will humble yourselves enough to accept the help (Prv. 16:18).

Still Waiting,

Scott

The email address I used: 'rshepherd@mcdonoughcofc.org' was the one supplied by his name on the website i found. If you have a different address I sure would like it so as to send the note along. Thanks.

Kindly,
Scott
